Meals on Wheels

Story by Chris Keating

A knock on the door, a quick greeting and the simple service provided by Meals On Wheels is over.

Quietly and quickly, Meals On Wheels volunteers perform their task five times each week in Upland.

While the service — a nourishing hot meal at a low cost — is simple for the volunteers to provide, it fills a need that all of their clients would find hard to do on their own.

"It's just one of those things you don't do," said Betsie Petre, an elderly Upland resident who resides in a small mobile home.

Petre's inability to prepare hot meals could keep her from eating nutritious food. Because of that, Meals On Wheels Coordinator Al Voak knows why such an organization is needed.

"There are many people who are unable to fix meals for themselves," Voak explained.

The concept of Meals On Wheels was imported from England, where it had enjoyed wide success. Voak said the Upland-Ontario group was formed after observing a similar operation in Pasadena in 1973.

Seven local cities now have a Meals On Wheels.

Voak was part of the founding of the Upland-Ontario Meals On Wheels organization and is a past president. Currently his day-to-day work as coordinator involves answering mail, scheduling delivery routes, bookkeeping and other functions.

Like all Meals On Wheels workers, Voak receives nothing more than personal satisfaction for his efforts.

"Our volunteers — which we never seem to have enough — drive their own cars around," said Voak. The drivers are not even reimbursed for mileage.

Most of the volunteers, who serve one day a week, come from church or civic groups. Some do it, Voak said because of the feeling of camaraderie.

"It's something to do," he said.

Naomi Zimmerman, who has volunteered once a week for 11 years, agreed with Voak.

"It does make you feel more fortunate, especially when you go on deliveries," Zimmerman said.

The non-profit group must charge a fee since the few donations it receives won't cover operating costs, Voak explained and Meals On Wheels' clients receive one hot meal a day, at lunch time.

Beyond that, Voak said his clients have to "survive the best they can."

"All we're doing is giving them one good, balanced meal a day," Voak said.

Pat Busch, who coordinates a team of volunteers in packing the food for delivery, said that, while some clients have to fend for themselves between deliveries, most get by.

"Most of the people have somebody else," Busch said. And, "the meal for many of these older people is enough for two meals."

Meals are prepared at San Antonio Hospital, picked up each day by volunteers and taken to Upland First Presbyterian Church where they are packaged.

Packaging the meals for Upland's 20 customers turns into an assembly line as each volunteer readies the meals for delivery.

The whole operation is accomplished with Army-like precision, taking only two hours from the opening of the first paper sack until the last meal is delivered. Busch explained that each worker understands his or her role.

"Some of the girls usually package the desserts; others serve. I put the lids on," Busch laughed.

The menu is determined by the hospital, which follows a regular four-week rotation. Voak said he has received few complaints about the food — which is basic hospital fare.

"San Antonio has a reputation of putting out good food," Voak said.

Busch agreed, adding that she thought the dinners would probably become routine after a while.

Any person with a disability can apply for Meals On Wheels. Requests from people of all ages are considered, Voak said, adding that the disability requirement is waived for those over 90. Requests are screened by Voak. "If a doctor recommends it, then we don't question it any," Voak said.

Demand for the service is always high, Voak said. Because of that demand, Voak is searching for "half a dozen or so" extra or substitute volunteers.

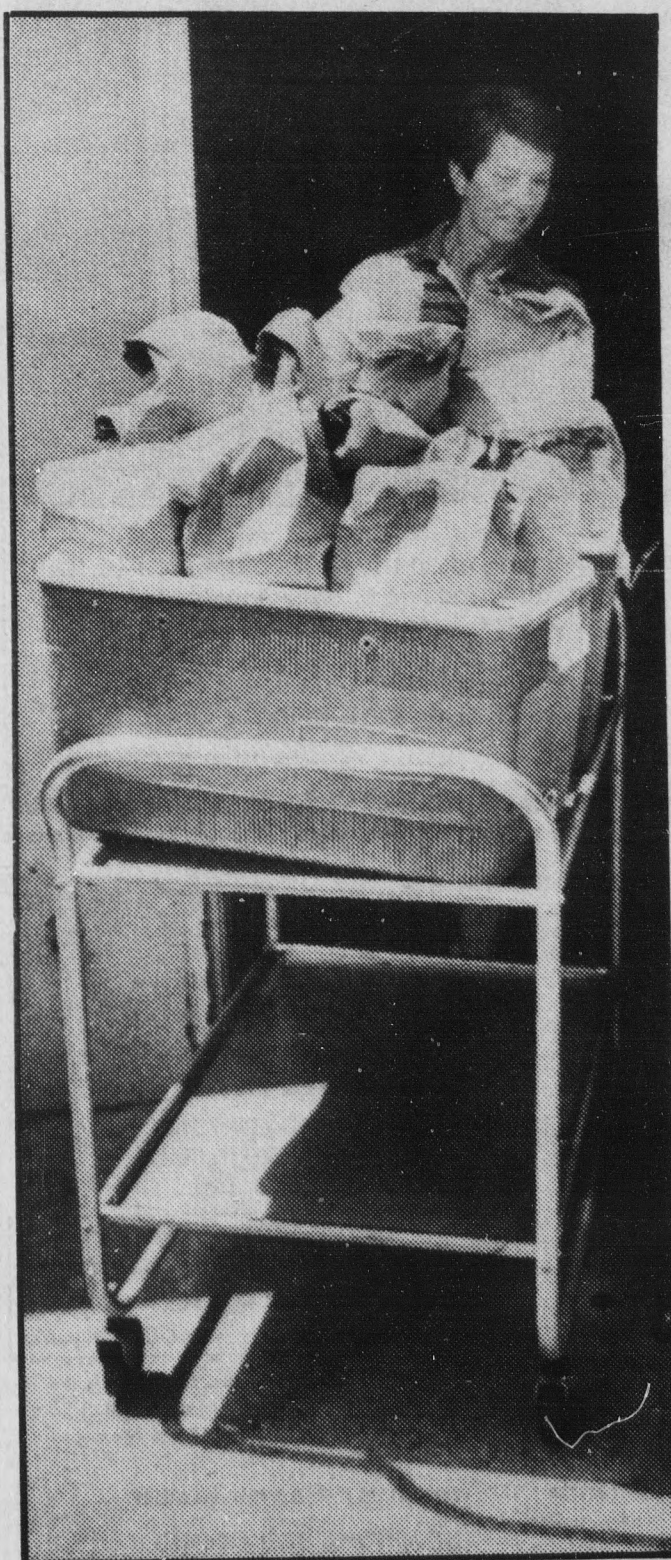

"A lot of people do it for a while then they get tired of it," Voak noted. Busch said summer vacation brings an additional need for substitute volunteers.

"The summertime is bad, with people coming and going," Busch said.

Potential volunteers can contact Voak by calling the Meals On Wheels organization, 981-2286.

Meals On Wheels volunteer Naomi Zimmerman of Upland, (above) scoops out a serving of mashed potatoes with the help of Ann Castellini, a Rancho Cucamonga resident. The hot meals (top) are prepared at San Antonio Community Hospital. On the cover: a grateful Vera Larsen accepts delivery of her meal from volunteer Henrietta Forman.

Not having to prepare meals is a big help to Helen and Norbert Scheu (top) who have been receiving meals for two years. Peggy Godsey (left) wheels a box full of lunch bags to delivery cars. As Bessie Petre watches (above), Henrietta Forman unpacks the cold selection of the day's meal.

She fights uphill battle against drunk driving

By Chris Keating

Jan Kruger hopes her work with Mothers Against Drunk Driving will end someday.

She says she will gladly end her work there are no more fatal traffic accidents involving drunk drivers and there are tougher drunk driving laws.

But with an estimated 25,000 deaths each year resulting from alcohol related traffic accidents in the nation, the prospects of Kruger stopping her work soon are slim.

Because of that, she remains a willing participant in MADD's battle against drunk drivers.

Kruger joined the MADD army after a drunk driver killed her niece and the girl's fiance on Mother's Day, 1982. Stricken by the tragedy, she searched for ways to work through what she called "the grief process."

"I got to thinking, how can this happen," said Kruger, an Upland resident who is a learning disability aide at Sycamore School.

She emphasized it often takes such tragedy before people consider joining MADD.

"I don't think one realizes what the feeling is until it happens to your family," said Kruger.

Kruger said about 75 percent of MADD's members join after a loved one is killed. At that point, Kruger said, the "senselessness" of the crime becomes apparent.

After joining MADD, Kruger became aware of the need for a local association of members. She found there were local people interested in forming a MADD group apart from the organization's Los Angeles and Orange County chapters — both too distant for West Valley residents.

Covering the vast area from "Palm Springs to Pasadena," the local group meets monthly at Upland First Presbyterian Church and is affiliated with Orange County's chapter.

The local group, Kruger said, is not yet a true chapter since it lacks full-time office staff.

In a way, Kruger said, the group has a watchdog function. It keeps tabs on drunk driving cases as they proceed through the courts — acting as a buffer between the justice system and the families of victims.

"A lot of people don't know what happens," Kruger explained, referring to how a case is handled by the courts.

A large portion of MADD's court monitoring efforts take the form of writing letters to the district attorney, probation officers and even judges, demanding stiff sentences for convicted drunk drivers.

Kruger admitted it's "an uphill battle" at times.

"It is discouraging and hard to explain to a family that a man (convicted of drunk driving) did receive the maximum sentence, and that still is not enough," Kruger said.

Infant-toddler car seats available from group

There is no waiting list for the 20 infant-toddler car seats now on hand for rental through the Ontario-Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens.

"We have filled the waiting lists from other agencies with similar programs and now are ready to rent the car seats to the public," said Judy Uebelhart, the association's public information technician.

The program was created to assist low-income families or those needing car seats for a short time. "Now that summer is here, we are filling many requests for short-term rentals for individuals with visiting grandchildren," Uebelhart said.

A $15 deposit is required at the time of leasing. A small monthly charge is deducted during the course of the lease.

California law makes drivers responsible for properly securing small children in their car. The law applies to children under 4 years of age or 40 pounds.

For more information, people may call OPARC at 621-3884.

rewarding for her.

For example, more than 700 students filled an auditorium at Montclair High School to hear Kruger speak recently.

"It was a voluntary assembly and the auditorium was filled," said Kruger.

She insisted her plea is not a lecture; she merely relates her own story, encouraging people not to drink and drive.

"If I just changed someone's mind," Kruger said. "Then if was worth it." Kruger attempts to tell parents and friends of victims that "it does get better."

The grieving period is usually "two years and sometimes longer," Kruger said. Within that time frame, she said, "people have lots of ways of handling (grief)."

For Jan Kruger, working with MADD was a way of successfully dealing with a tragedy that struck her family. She yearns for the day that work will, by necessity, cease.

"Maybe the laws will get so strict that we can do away with MADD," she said. □

Upland parks to help fight cystic fibrosis

Upland Parks and Recreation will host a Cystic Fibrosis Aerob-A-Thon on July 17 to raise funds for cystic fibrosis (CF), said Cindi Testa, recreation supervisor.

"Anyone who wants to work out for health, fun and prizes can register," Testa said. "Participants will collect pledges for every continuous minute exercised in an aerobic exercise program. Funds raised in the Aerob-A-Thon will be used for cystic fibrosis research, patient care and education."

Prizes in the Aerob-A-Thon will be awarded to participants based on the amount of money collected and include t-shirts, duffel bags, personal FM stereos. Grand prizes include a trip to Hawaii, Las Vegas, Catalina Island and a get-away weekend on San Diego's Mission Bay.

Sponsor sheets may be picked up at the Upland Recreation Center of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation in Riverside.

For further information on the Aerob-A-Thon call 682-6762.

According to medical officials, cystic fibrosis is the country's number one genetic killer of children and young adults. Everyday five children are born with it; three children die because of it. The disease is inherited and incurable. Medical advances have greatly increased the life expectancy of CF victims in the past 15 years.

Time is running out for dog owners in county

County dog licenses expire July 31, and that's also the end of the 1984-85 "Love me ... license me" campaign by the animal control services program of the San Bernardino County Department of Public Health.

After July 31, owners of unlicensed dogs face a delinquent fee of $25 for all licenses and possibly face citation for violating state and county health laws.

All dogs over 4 months old in unincorporated county areas and the cities of Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga must be licensed every year. Once a dog reaches 4 months the owner has 30 days to get the dog vaccinated and licensed.

Any person who buys a dog or moves into the area — even if it was licensed elsewhere — has 15 days to get the dog licensed with San Bernardino County. All current county dog licenses expire June 30.

Dogs vaccinated in California in 1983 require only a new license. Owners may purchase licenses at:

- Chino Health Department, 13260 Central Ave., Chino. Hours are 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

- Ontario Health Department, 320 E. D St., Ontario. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

- Rancho Cucamonga City Hall, 9320 Base Line Road, Unit C. Hours are 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Dog owners may also purchase licenses by mail.

They should enclose the current rabies certificate or last year's license receipt along with the check or money order for the license fee. The new license tag, the rabies certificate and the receipt will be sent to the owner.

Today, Elizabeth Had Surgery

Tonight, she'll sleep in her own bed. If like Elizabeth, you need surgery but don't need to be in the hospital overnight, plan to have it done at San Antonio Community Hospital.

As a long-time provider of comprehensive health care, we have continued to expand our services to meet the needs of the communities we serve.

We are pleased to announce the completion and opening of a specially designed and expanded day care surgery center.

The costs for services in our day care program are considerably less than for regular in-patient care. Before your surgery, we can tell you what your charges will be.

If you are covered by Medicare, call us for information about our special plan just for you.

Our brand-new, fully-equipped Day Care Surgery Center is in the hospital so you know our nurses, specialists and diagnostic facilities are always here if you need them.

But best of all, like Elizabeth, you get to leave the same day you come. So next time you need surgery, ask your physician about the Day Care Surgery Program at San Antonio Community Hospital.

Or call us at (714) 985-2811, extension 2259.

Nobody likes going to the hospital. But the Day Care Surgery Center makes it a whole lot easier.

LIBRARY NEWS

By Pat Casteneda
Reference Librarian

The annual Library Volunteer of the Year award was presented to two volunteers at an informal luncheon on June 1 at the library.

The honored volunteers were Kay Levine of Rancho Cucamonga (formerly of Upland) and John Niederhauser of Upland. Kay and John have been volunteers for almost two years, and each has made valuable contributions of time on a regular basis.

Kay takes books to residents of California Villa, a retirement community in Upland. Occasionally, she shows a movie or conducts a discussion group there. She also offers library service to shut-ins, people who cannot leave their homes to get to the library.

Kay's duties require a trip every two weeks to California Villa, and stops every two weeks to visit her home-bound library patrons.

She also spends one or two hours a week in the library preparing for the visits. She has to look up book titles, find books on the shelf, and look for ideas for books that might appear to her very particular patrons.

She receives a sense of satisfaction from providing that valuable link between the library and people who might not otherwise be able to use library services.

Dr. John Niederhauser is a retired professor of education from Cal State Fullerton. He began donating his time to the library after his retirement in 1982. He specializes in working at the circulation desk and makes a particularly valuable contribution when the summer reading program creates crowds of young readers. While the staff frantically works to help each reader play the reading game, find appropriate books, and check them out, John calmly mans the circulation desk, helping to keep things moving.

His work during quieter times frees staff from desk duty and allows them valuable catch-up time for off-desk work.

There's one thing John isn't so calm about. When he catches someone leaving overdue books without paying fines, look out! He has a no-nonsense approach to bringing fines to the attention of negligent borrowers.

He has found that books left in the book-drop just west of the entrance during the daytime are invariably overdue, and he especially delights in leaping out the door after the delinquents.

He never relinquishes his dignity in doing this, but the same may not be said for those he catches.

John, like Kay, is enabling the library to offer a level of service to the community it might not otherwise be able to offer. At the same time, he derives a sense of satisfaction from the contribution he makes to the community.

Cultural center plans Japanese Festival tour

A special bus tour to a Japanese Festival at the Huntington Library and Art Gardens in Pasadena is planned July 6 by the board of directors of the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center.

The bus will leave the CCCC, 525 W. 18th St., Upland, at noon and return about 5:30 p.m. The festival, similar to the Star Festival that takes place in Japan, is held in the Japanese garden and features Japanese dances, a tea ceremony, ancient Japanese music and a display of flowers arranged in Japanese style.

Reservations are necessary on a first-come, first-served basis. Send $10 check per person to Chaffey Communities Cultural Center, P.O. Box 772, Upland, CA 91786.

For more information on this trip that has been arranged through the Olympic Arts Festival, call Beatrice S. Riggs, CCCC director, at 981-5098.

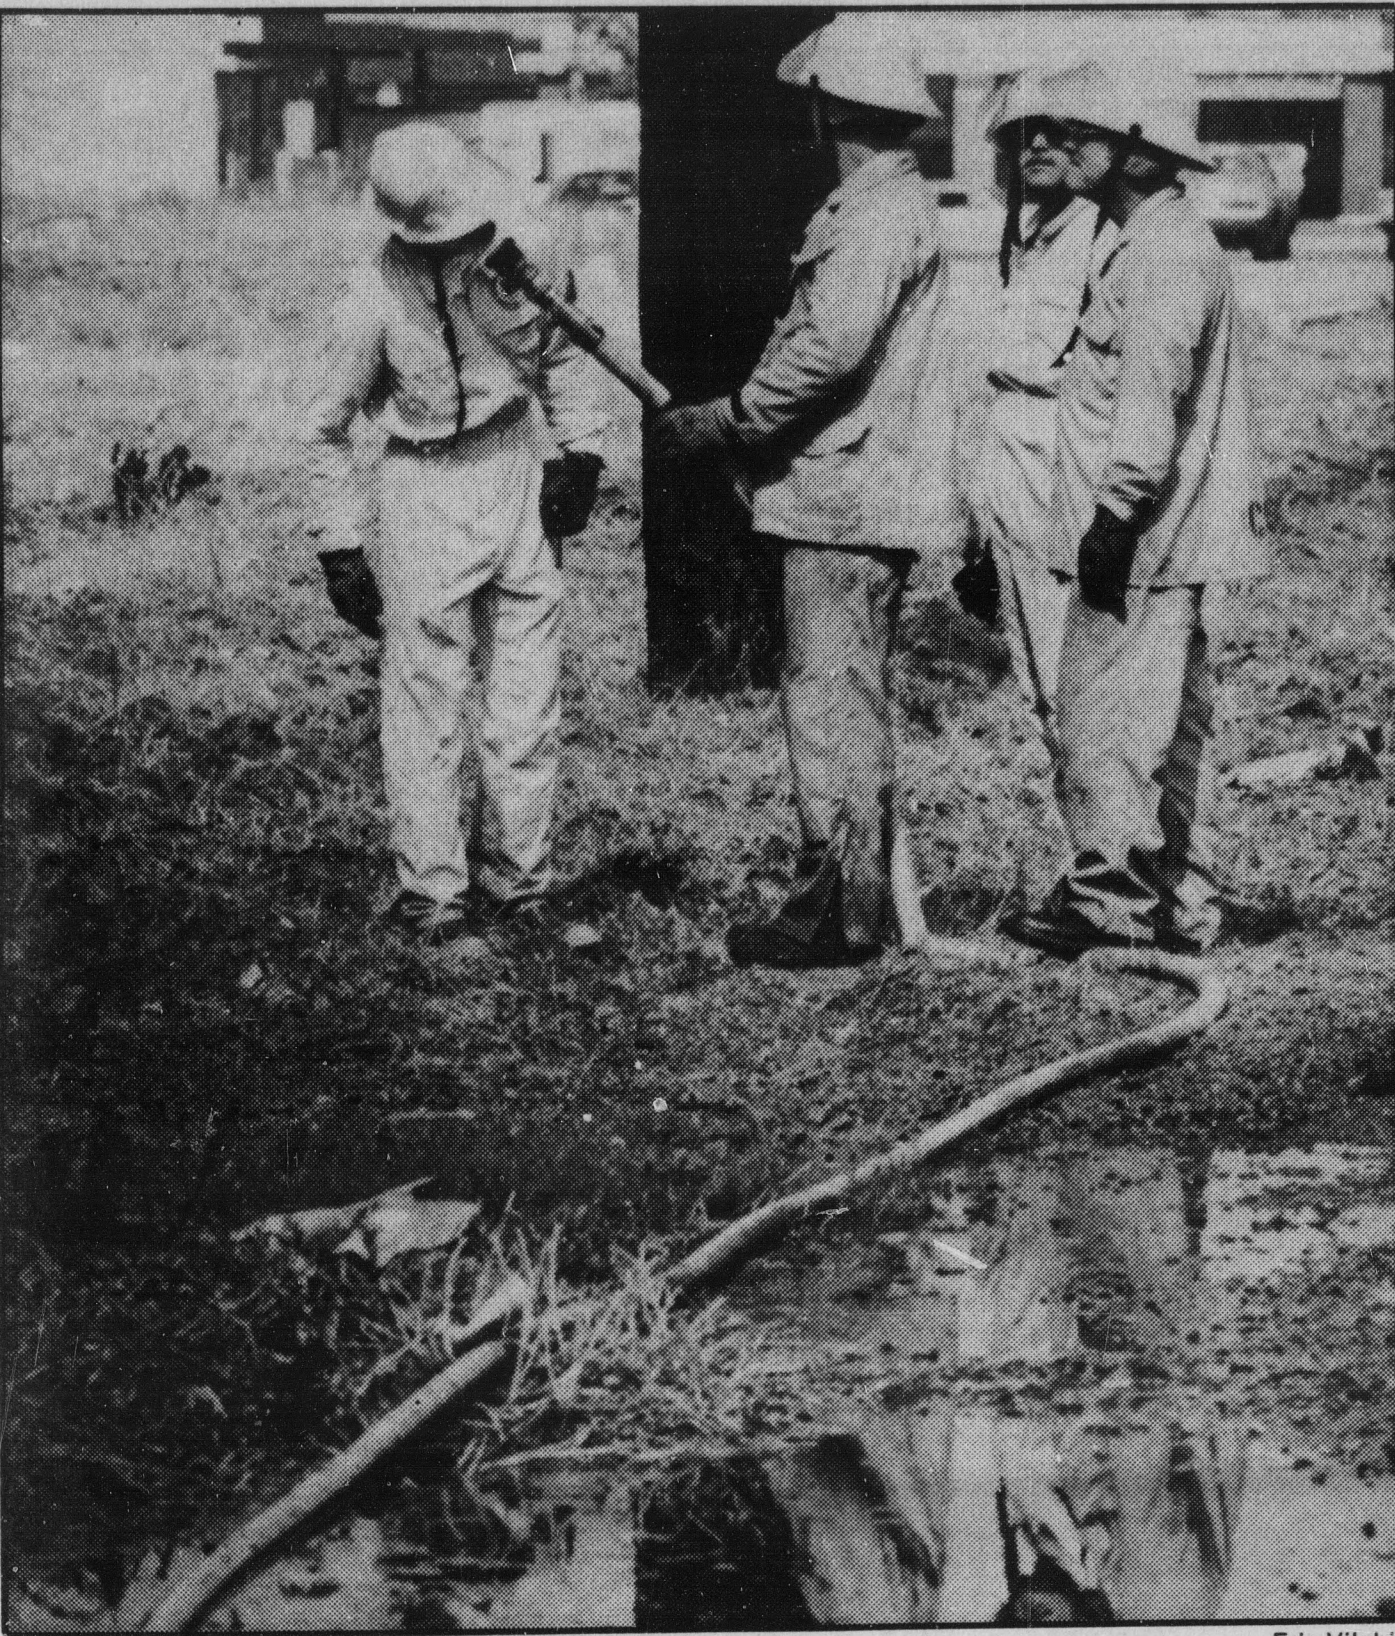

Running spring camp needs some asthmatic youngsters

The American Lung Association of San Bernardino, Inyo and Mono counties is seeking asthmatic youngsters ages 9-14 to attend its summer camp program in Running Springs Aug. 27-Sept. 2.

The special program will include a medical staff and a staff of counselors. The activities to be offered will include swimming, archery, baseball, water slide, nature studies, movies, shows, picnics and other camp activities found in regular summer camp. The program is being made possible through private donations and through a grant recently awarded to the Lung Association by the Gannett Foundation.

Information and applications are available by calling the Lung Association at 884-5864 or 884-3310. All applications must be in by July 10 for consideration.

Thrift shop's volunteers honored at cancer society awards luncheon

Volunteers and staff of the American Cancer Society's Treasure Chest Thrift Shop attended an awards luncheon held recently at the Magic Lamp Inn in Rancho Cucamonga.

Special guest at the event, which was arranged by Doris Storey, thrift shop manager, was Dave Ricks, supervisor from the Inland Empire American Cancer Society office in Riverside. He introduced Dr. Roland Zimmerman of San Bernardino, specialist in radiation therapy, as guest speaker.

Awarded five-year pins for volunteer service were Myrtle Cuneo, Geneva Grant and Dorothy Gunn. Also honored were 15 of the 31 volunteers who have been working at the shop since the first one was opened in 1976.

Debate over use of oak in wine making

By Dan Berger
Copley News Service

Leo McCloskey may be called the ultimate wine scientist.

Yet, the wine maker at Felton-Empire Winery in the Santa Cruz Mountains of California earned his first collegiate degree in microbiology (not enology, as do so many wine makers) and recently gained his doctorate in a field only marginally related to wine making: tannin research.

Tannins are the anti-oxidant elements contained in grape skins and in wood (such as the oak barrels some wines are aged in) and thus there is tannin in all wine. But McCloskey's degree was in the tannins that are found in all plant matter.

The aim, McCloskey said, is to investigate these general tannins and see how they relate to wine tannins, and then to see how wine tannins relate to the aging and the development of wine.

This frightfully technical discussion is typical of the type into which McCloskey gets.

But the question most people want to know is: Is Felton-Empire's wine any good?

My answer would be: Stylistically, yes, they are good wines, but it takes a certain understanding of them. Some are still experimental.

Two of these experiments are making their way onto store shelves. They are Felton-Empire's two 1981 Pinot Noirs, which represent an experiment in aging of red wine in wood.

The two wines are identical in all respects except one: Half of the lot was aged in French oak, and half of the wine was aged in American oak. The first is called Tonneaux Francaise (tonneaux is French for barrels) and sells for $11, and the other, Tonneaux Americain, $10.

"The extra dollar is to cover the higher cost of the French barrels," said McCloskey.

The Robert Mondavi Winery was probably the first winery to do extensive experiments in wood aging, noting the difference between wines aged in French and American oak barrels. Mondavi's conclusion was that French oak offered a more complex aroma and taste; wine aged in American oak was more pinelike, sappy and simple.

But the answers are not all in. Beaulieu Vineyards, which makes some of the finest Cabernet Sauvignons every year, has aged its Cabernet only in American oak, and no one says it lacks complexity.

McCloskey's experiment is another in the quest to determine the proper formula — if there is one — for aging fine Pinot Noir. And it succeeds if only because the wines show marked differences when judged side by side.

If you plan to compare these experimental wines, decant them, then notice the aroma of the American oak-aged wine: it is grappier, simpler, with a less dense sort of aroma. The French oak-aged wine is slightly earthier, or perhaps one could say reminiscent of burnt chocolate. It is more complex.

The wines clearly will improve with bottle age, but even at this early stage they taste fine and show differences.

Another McCloskey wine I liked was a 1983 Gewurztraminer ($6.50), from Mendocino County grapes. This wine does not show the typical, intensely spicy aroma of most California Gewurztraminers, but instead is more refined, delicate and in need of at least six more months in the bottle before it will begin to round out.

Yet the wine offers a wonderful balance, of delicate residual sugars, high acidity, low pH, and a crispness in the mouth that makes the wine a fine match for food.

Almost two years ago I tasted three Chardonnays that were light, clean and delicate. But they were not candidates to win any hearts, or gold medals, I thought.

They were the 1981 Shafer Chardonnay, 1981 Trefethen Chardonnay, and 1981 Burgess Chardonnay, all wines from Napa. They were all clean, but no blockbusters.

Over the next couple of years, bigger, oakier wines won plaudits and gold medals at wine tastings. The Shafer, Trefethen and Burgess wines simply were consumed by people who like good wine with food.

Recently I staged a wine tasting, a retrospective on the 1981 Chardonnays I had personally liked. In that group were wines I had originally found to be light but beautifully made. I also threw in a few 1981 wines that I knew were overoaked, but were wines that had done well in major competitions in 1982 and 1983.

It was no surprise to me when the group of expert tasters rated these three wines on top.

I wasn't surprised because I know the track record and house style of the three wineries.

Not to exclude others who are in the same ball park, but Shafer, Trefethen and Burgess make Chardonnays in a style that doesn't change radically. Their wine makers hew to careful underoaking, moderate alcohols and delicacy.

High school students to get camp counselor training

High school students are invited to a camping session July 10-13 at Big Bear Lake campgrounds where they will learn to be camp counselors to junior high students at another four-day retreat later in the summer.

Cost of the camp is $75. Applications may be obtained by calling Reach Out West End at 989-2016.

Because younger teens are greatly influenced by their older peers, this program is designed to equip high school students with skills in communication, role modeling and personal development which will enable them to work at a "Be Your Own Best Friend" campout for 12- to 14-year-olds, said officials. High school students who successfully complete the peer counselor training will be invited to counsel at a junior high camp July 31-Aug. 3 or Aug. 21-24.

Reach Out West End, located in Rancho Cucamonga, provides a drug abuse prevention education program to West End school systems. It also sponsors "Be Your Own Best Friend" camps as a summer adjunct to the school program. It is a non-profit organization, supported by funds from San Bernardino County and the Greater West End United Way.

Annual Latin fiesta set for two days in July

Oro Productions, creators of the nationally syndicated "Bravisimo" musical variety series, announces its second annual "Fiesta En Pomona '84," featuring Latin Superstar Vincente Fernandez and an international cast of cowboys, charros and gauchos from around the world.

The rodeo/music festival extravaganza, produced in association with Cotton Rosser's Flying U Rodeo, will take place one week before this year's Olympic Games, on July 21 and 22, at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona.

In addition to the international rodeo and thrill show, which will feature champion American, Canadian and Australian cowboys, Mexican charros and Argentinian gauchos, this year's "Fiesta En Pomona" cross-cultural festival will include:

Vincente Fernandez, "El Idolito de Mexico," performing "En Concierto" both days.

Laguna's annual art fest set to begin

The Festival of Arts will open its 52nd season at 10 a.m. July 7 at 650 Laguna Canyon Road with many new features.

The event — the biggest of its kind in the West — is a display of work by artists and craftsmen living on the coastal strip between Newport Beach and San Clemente.

Categories are numerous, including paintings, etchings, drawings, serigraphs, stained glass, model ships, weaving, photography, wood carving, blown, etched glass, jewelry and furniture.

All work shown is for sale.

Other displays include the work of art students around the county, arranged by grade, from kindergarten through high school. Work by festival scholarship winners is on exhibit too.

The junior art workshop allows children to try their hands at creating their first masterpieces. It's free.

Each Sunday afternoon at 5, dancers from Ballet Pacifica will present a 22-minute show.

The festival has been honored by the U.S. Mint as the setting for an exhibit of official Olympic coins — in various stages of creation. Officials from the mint will be on hand to answer questions.

In an air-conditioned forum theater on the grounds, two types of entertainment will be offered daily — a marionette show presented by Scott Land; and showings of old movies, including "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes." The marionette show is a paid-admission attraction. The movies are free.

The Pageant of the Masters is a two-hour program presented at 8:30 each evening in an amphitheater alongside the grounds.

Featuring the re-creation of great works of art with real people posing to represent their counterparts in the original works, the pageant includes presentations of the masterpieces and narration with music provided by a 27-piece orchestra.

Don't expect a job from nowhere

By Holt Confer
Copley News Service

If you decide to take up writing and/or photography seriously, seriously enough, that is, to try making a living from your creativity, chances are you'll go through a period where the memory of working a simple 9-to-5 job will seem like a long, lost vacation.

Almost everyone I've ever met who freelances had to struggle in the beginning. And what makes the struggling so gut wrenching is the typical "Catch 22" scenario that always occurs: "We only hire experienced people!" the client will tell you. So you walk away, dazed, wondering how anyone ever gets started in this business.

Well, I'm going to tell you about a few places that won't be of much help to you at any time during your career. Whenever I receive letters about ways to make money with writing or photography, I follow up on them just to see what kind of "help" I'm really being offered. I have yet to get one single assignment from any of the places that have told me they were looking for experienced writers and/or photographers.

I have pretty fair credentials — not only have I been doing this nationally distributed column for the Copley people for nearly four years, but also I've written and photographed features for many major trade publications as well as taken many case history assignments for some very large public relations firms. Additionally, my photography (handled by two stock photo houses) has found its way into a good many publications.

Following is a copy of a letter I received several years ago, from a company, that purports to provide assignments to free-lance photographers. I've changed some of the wording a bit to protect the guilty but you'll get the idea and begin to question this type of approach that so often arrives at the doorstep of fledgling professionals.

"Without any cost or obligation," the letter begins, "we have registered you as one of our free-lance photographers (writers) available for potential assignments."

"We provide assignments for career freelancers; or retired executives, editors or professional authorities who keep active as photographers (writers); or photographers (writers) currently employed but seeking extra revenue. We also provide assignments for photographers (writers) located in over 400 U.S. cities and towns and in 40 foreign countries, for local case histories, photo-reporting and research."

"We constantly scout for photographers (writers) of outstanding competence for our assignments. These assignments originate from business and industrial companies, technological and scientific institutions, associations, publishers, advertising agencies, public relations concerns, motion picture and slide film producers, research organizations, government and other sources."

"Requests we receive for free-lance photographers (writers) specify involvement with clearly defined subjects. Thus your detailed, up-to-date resume is essential in helping us pinpoint your experience for each assignment.

"We pay our photographers (writers) on pre-arranged terms. Fees are usually calculated on an hourly rate, per diem rate, per week rate or a flat fee per job. We have to be flexible for such a large variety of clients.

"Please do not submit samples or call at our office

Stork to get cost estimate on quad

A cost estimate on enclosing an end of the school quad at Floyd M. Stork School in Rancho Cucamonga is expected to be ready by early August.

Alta Loma School District superintendent John McMurtry told two parents of students attending the school district's school board meeting Monday night the estimate is being prepared.

Parents of students at the school are trying to curtail the cold winds which blow in the hallway, lunch and stage areas of the school.

District staff members told trustees in June that enclosing an end of the roofed school quad would help. But parents attending that meeting disagreed on whether it would be best to enclose the east or west end.

At its last meeting, the school board directed Floyd M. Stork, assistant superintendent of special projects, to find out the costs involved in enclosing the east end and directed him to meet with parents before recommending which end to enclose.

The meeting with parents will be scheduled when the cost study is prepared, Stork said.

Attending the Monday meeting was Sherry Balsano, former president of the Parent Faculty Student Association (PFSA), a proponent of enclosing the east end.

At the board's meeting in June, Balsano said she has sat with youngsters at the school who have had to wear parkas to fight off cold winds while eating lunch in the school quad.

Athletic club to play bingo

Chaffey College Athletic Club will have a Sunday Brunch on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. preceding a regularly scheduled bingo game.

The college athletic club sponsors Sunday games from 1:15 to 4:30 at the American Legion Hall, 310 Emporia St., Ontario.

With its characteristic lack of consideration for newspaper deadlines, the U.S. Postal Service has announced that post offices in 41 cities are providing a special Olympic Torch Station cancel along the Olympic Torch relay route. The news was delivered by my postman May 9 and the first city cancel was New York, N.Y., May 8!

The copy for this column was due in the mail to the editor May 9. By the time it appears in print all the cities listed for May and June will have long since waved goodbye to the torch.

How the USPS can reasonably expect any collector reading philatelic columns in the lay press, or for that matter in the philatelic press, to pull off the miracle of securing these prized cancellations when we haven't even heard of them is one big riddle.

Anticipating that some of us might not hear of the cancellation in time — what a funny change that to "all of us" — the USPS is having 13-cent Olympic postal cards canceled in limited quantities at each city and is offering a complete set of 41 canceled postal cards for $5.33, plus 50 cents postage and handling, on a first-come, first-served basis while supplies last. Send orders to "Olympic Torch Postal Cards Cancellations Set, Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20265-9997. Good luck. Hope some of you get the set. If you don't, why not try a little yelling? At the postmaster general.

On the other hand, the USPS did get the news out with a few days to spare about a 13-cent commemorative postal card honoring humanitarian Frederic Baraga, June 29, in Marquette, Mich.

For more than 37 years, Baraga devoted his life to educating the Indians of the Great Lakes. In 1831, he settled in Michigan's lower peninsula during a time when many white settlers feared and conspired against the native Indians. Baraga, however, promoted peace and harmony, and to the Indians he became a friend and teacher, erecting schools and churches.

He worked among the Chippewa Indian tribes on an island in

Q. We live in a Northern state. Our new neighbors from the South asked us about heartworm prevention in our dogs.

We have never been concerned about heartworms! Should we put our dogs on preventive medication during the summer?

A. Until recently heartworm disease in dogs was thought to be a problem only in the states with warm climates. However, in the past few years the disease has been identified in all parts of the United States and in Canada. This is probably due to the fact that dogs can carry heartworms for several years and due to the transient nature of our society. Heartworm disease may be a problem anywhere in the United States.

Heartworms are transmitted from dog to dog by mosquitoes.

Whenever a mosquito bites any infected dog, it will likely take up blood containing the larval stage of the heartworm, the microfilariae.

The microfilariae incubate in the mosquito for approximately two weeks, during which time they develop into the infective larvae. When the mosquito bites another dog, the infective larvae are passed into the second dog, infecting it. The infective larvae migrate through the tissues of the dog for about three months. They eventually reach the heart.

In the heart, the larvae mature into adult worms. This takes approximately three months.

The adult heartworms live in the right side of the heart and the large blood vessels adjacent to the heart. An adult heartworm may be 6 to 14 inches in length.

Each adult female can produce up to 30,000 microfilariae per day. The microfilariae are then released into the blood vessels where they may live for a year or more.

Heartworms do their damage by obstructing the flow of blood. This may result in serious damage to the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys.

Signs of advanced cases include fatigue, chronic coughing, loss of weight, fainting, dull hair coat, discharges from the eyes and nose, and shortness of breath. The disease may lead to congestive heart failure and death.

Diagnosis of heartworm disease in its early stages can usually be made by a simple blood examination. X-rays and other laboratory tests are usually required in advanced cases prior to treatment.

Most dogs can be successfully treated for heartworms if the disease is diagnosed early. Treatment involves intravenous injections or surgery to kill or remove the adult worms.

After all the adult heartworms are eliminated, another drug must be given to rid the bloodstream of the microfilariae. The microfilariae are usually not susceptible to the initial drugs for the adults.

Prevention of heartworm disease is possible. Small daily doses of a drug that keeps the infective larvae from developing into adults can be given. This must be done daily throughout the mosquito season, and continued for two months following the mosquito season.

In warm climates, the medication must be given throughout the entire year. These drugs can usually be given in the dog's food.

Heartworm disease medication should only be given under the supervision of a veterinarian. Heartworm disease is a preventable disease. Your veterinarian can advise you regarding whether your particular dog should be on preventive medication for heartworms.

Questions should be mailed to R.G. Elmore, D.V.M., Points on Pets, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Volume of mail prohibits individual responses. Only questions of general interest will be answered in this column.

COINS

By Gary L. Palmer
Copley News Service

You can glean many interesting numismatic tidbits from a quarterly publication titled Rare Coin Review, published by Bowers and Merena Galleries Inc., Box 1224, Wolfeboro, NH 03894.

Not that the publication isn't self-serving for the coin dealer team. Certainly Q. David Bowers and Ray Merena would hope your perusal of the Review might result in business dealings with the firm. And well it might. But Bowers and Merena are also two of the nation's most respected and knowledgeable dealers in the hobby and much of the information they impart gives you an excellent opportunity to learn from a couple of masters.

Their 52nd issue of Rare Coin Review contains, besides voluminous coins for sale, many book offerings, a well-thought-out treatise on coin collecting from Bowers himself, president of the American Numismatic Association, interesting numismatic facts from Merena, a coin quiz to test your knowledge, an interesting recollection of Virgil Brand and his famous collection and a question-and-answer forum with Bowers.

Merena is willing to send readers of this column a free copy of the 48-page publication, which carries a price tag of $3.

Orders should be directed to Bowers and Merena Galleries Inc., Special Review Offer, Box 1224-NR, Wolfeboro, NH 03894.

The second edition of "Official A.N.A. Grading Standards for United States Coins" has been revised and while it is essentially the same, one pleasant discovery is a lower price.

The Whitman Coin Products Division of Western Publishing Co. Inc., Racine, WI 53404, was able to trim the price $1 for this revision, thanks to a new softcover binding. Instead of $6.95, you'll pay $5.95 for the revised second edition, a welcome happening in these days when book prices are climbing at a startling rate.

Robot, appropriately, will cut the ribbon at computer store opening

Proto, an advanced robot, will make a speech and cut the ribbon at the grand opening ceremonies of Software Centre in Upland.

The new store is part of Software Centre International, a computer software retail chain. The store will carry a line of software products ranging from educational and recreational games to sophisticated business programs, computer supplies and computer books and magazines.

The grand opening will be held July 14 at 11 a.m. The store is located at 916 N. Mountain Ave.

For more information, call 946-5665.

Unless you're a "hardcover addict," the newest second edition should do just fine.

Only minor revisions have been made to clarify text and in some cases add greater accuracy to the line drawings.

Grading standards in this book are sponsored and endorsed by the American Numismatic Association. Every design used on U.S. coins since 1793 is detailed, with special drawings illustrating the points and amount of wear that determine the various grades of condition — a key to the pricing of coins. All aspects of grading are thoroughly described, with easy-to-follow commentary on 13 standard grades for every coin.

The 352-page book is an indispensable tool when grading coins for selling or making sure you are getting a properly graded coin when purchasing.

Lake Superior off the coast of northern Wisconsin. By compiling the only Chippewa dictionary of the period and writing a vocabulary book for the Ojibwa tribe, Baraga ensured the preservation of those Indian languages for posterity. Today the area where he lived and worked is commonly referred to as "Baragaland." He died in 1868 and is buried in Marquette.

Gun show set for L.A. county fairgrounds

Don Bullock will bring his California Gun and Collectors Show to Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona July 14-15.

The show contains a mixture of modern firearms and accouterments as well as antique guns and standard equipment, including ammo belts, swords, Bowie-type hunting knives, holsters, uniforms (both Confederate and Union), and frontier pistols carrying Colt and Smith and Wesson names.

Gun hobbyists interested in weapons used by the military in World Wars I and II, the Korean and Vietnam wars will find a complete supply. In addition, a full complement of the latest in hunting rifles and shotguns, and such gun accessories as scopes game bags and cartridge belts, will be found at the show.

Free appraisals for personal and insurance needs will be available, and there will be professional gunsmiths on the premises.

Hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Adults admission will be $3.50; students 5 to 12 years of age $2, and for children under 5 free.

For further information, persons may call (213) 430-5112.

Designed by veteran postal card artist David Blossom, it features Baraga and an Indian guide in a canoe enroute to an Indian village in the Great Lakes region. In the upper right corner, a single line of black type reads

"USA 13c."

For first-day cancellations the usual procedures apply. Customers purchasing the cards at local post offices and addressing them may send to: Customer-Provided Stationery, Postmaster, Marquette Mich. 49855-9991. No remittance is required.

Well, that's the basic content of the letter I received. From time to time over the years, I've followed up my original contacts with lots of these so-called "service" firms, and have yet to get one call to discuss any type of assignment.

I'm not telling you all this in the form of a complaint, but having been there myself, I do know that beginning professionals are "hungry" for work and could very well expect to get some sort of business from these folks — and starve to death waiting.

If any of you have had good experience with this type of organization, I sure would like to hear about them. But frankly, I don't expect to be overwhelmed with letters.

It's a small world

Story by Tony Saavedra

Philip Bennett is gonna build a mountain. He may add snow, melting and trickling through the cragged rocks.

He'll surely have some greenery, a forest or maybe a solitary old elm, gnarled and twisting with age.

When he's finished, he'll put the mountain on a small shelf in the greenhouse in his backyard.

Bennett is a master of "Saikai," the Japanese art of miniature landscapes.

The Rancho Cucamonga resident can create a forest primeval or a grove of trees small enough to fit on a coffee table or a window sill.

These are not models but living landscapes with real elms and other trees.

Bennett says his portable landscapes help preserve the wonders of a world slowly being covered with concrete.

"As we become more urbanized and there's less space, people like the idea of being able to carry about a landscape," says the 49-year-old Bennett.

Saikai is an extension of the Japanese "Bonzai" artform whereby miniature trees are grown in pots. In Saikai, the trees are combined with rocks, small ceramic figurines and other items to create a nature scene.

The Japanese are not content to simulate nature. These landscapes must recreate nature.

Branches must grasp for the sun. The knotted roots of older trees must bulge through the earth. There must be spaces between the foliage for

"the birds to fly through."

In short, the tendencies of nature must be copied thoroughly on a smaller scale.

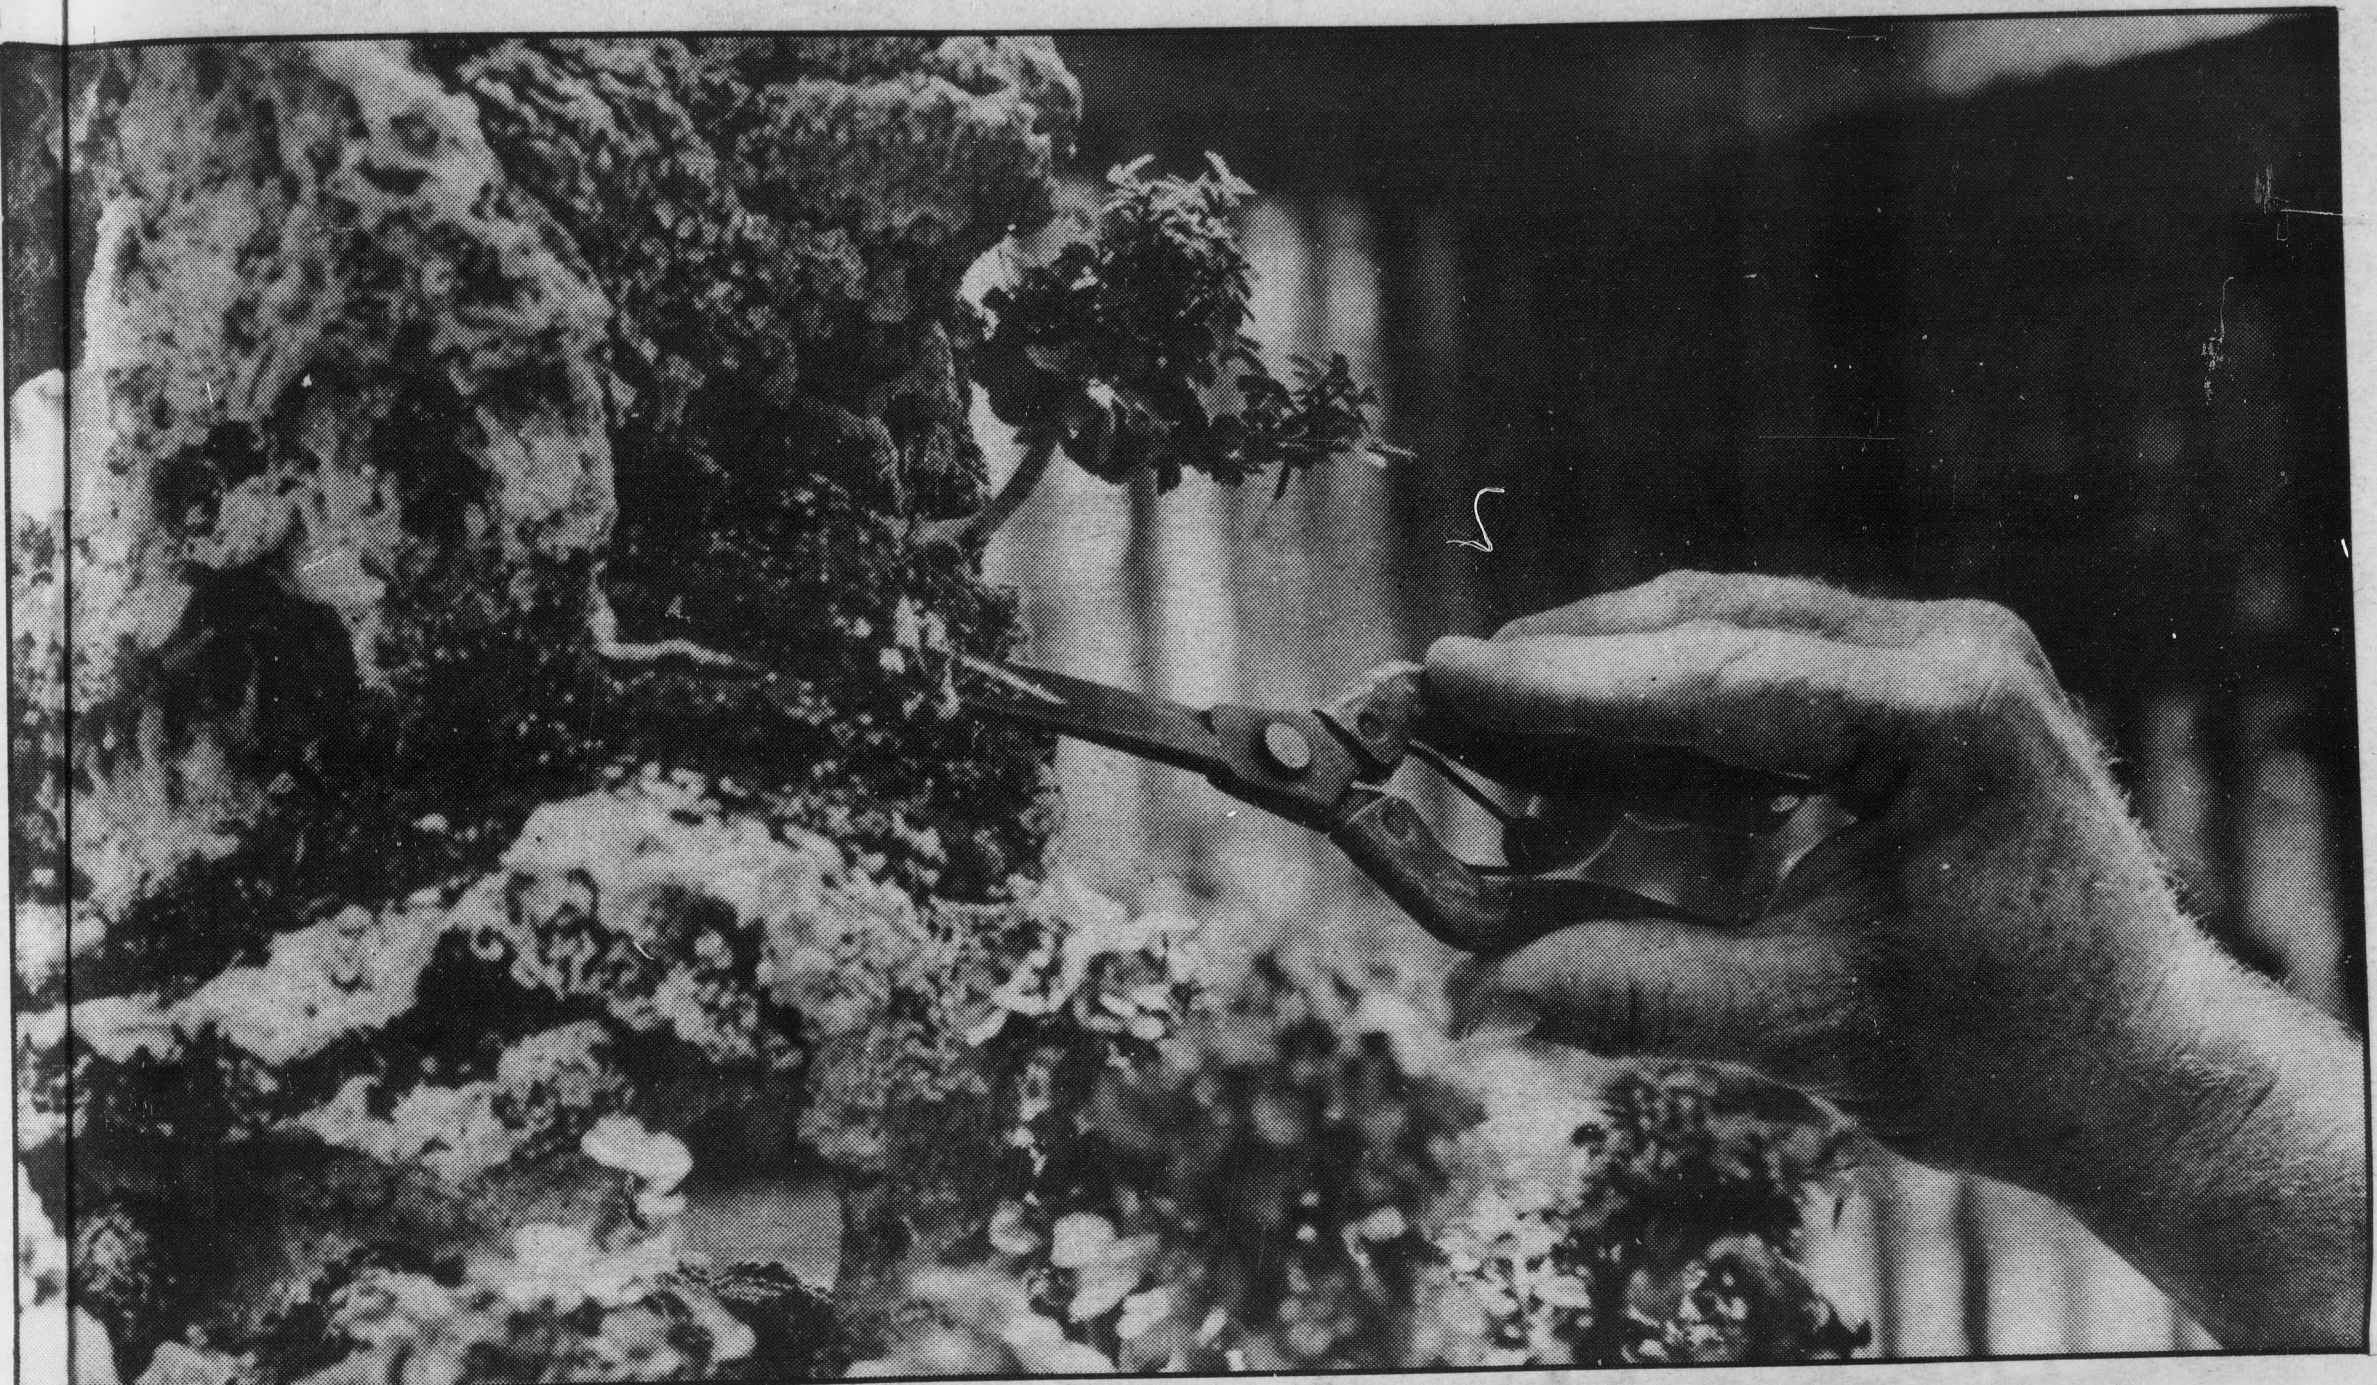

Rocks of various textures and colors are used to resemble snow-topped mountains, jagged hillsides and craggy formations.

Bennett has cultivated landscapes reminiscent of mountains overlooking peaceful Japanese gardens, lonesome pines atop a boulder-strewn hill, mountains twisting ominously like a castles in a dark forest and trees bent by roaring winds.

Bennett won't sell his landscapes, for only the creator can fully appreciate the creation.

But he'll teach anyone the art of Saikai. "(Otherwise) you can go to a bonzai dealer, buy a bonzai, take it home and watch it die," says Bennett. He will be teaching two courses this summer at his 10-acre home on Summit Avenue.

Bennett is hoping to find students with the same enthusiasm and appreciation that launched him into Saikei 10 years ago.

A Covina high school biology teacher, Bennett first became interested while attending a Saikei exposition in La Canada. He took classes, won some awards for his landscapes and eventually became known in Southern California for his work.

He picked up a paint brush along the way and studied watercolors from a Japanese master. Bennett's floral paintings are now sold at galleries in Los Angeles and San Juan Capistrano.

His paintings and plants are displayed yearly at the Los Angeles and Orange county fairs.

In the meantime, Bennett also breeds Arabian horses.

"When I trip through this ball of mud, I try to take a taste of everything along the way," says Bennett, a jade replica of Buddha hanging from his neck.

He leads the way to his greenhouse, down a path beside a landscaped pond and small waterfall.

"I like the sound of running water," he says, opening the greenhouse gate and walking briskly through the bees swarming around the miniature landscapes.

"In Saikei, it is the response that counts. If it will evoke an emotion," he explains. "The Japanese want your imagination to fill it in. You're supposed to take a walk with your eyes through the planting."

He points to a small forest of Catlin elms perched on a mountain side.

"Look at this. You've seen (this scene) somewhere before, on vacation or while driving," he assures a visitor.

A Japanese traveler (left photo) and the forest covering him are part of the world of saikei, miniature landscapes. The trees are actual elms. The careful hand of the creator clips (top photo) tiny branches of a tree growing from the craggy "cliff" of a landscape called "Shinto." Rancho Cucamonga resident Philip Bennett (above) and the miniature world that he has created.

Bennett notes that it takes anywhere from a week to a lifetime to complete a landscape so that it reproduces nature.

He says there is a design to life, a floorplan for any forest. And Japanese judges strictly adhere to that design.

Saikei trees should have a triangular head, with leaves that are small enough to keep the tree true to scale. If it is an old tree, the roots should show through the ground.

"When you get started in this business, you get weirder than hell," jokes Bennett. "You'll be driving down the road, looking at forests and re-rooting them in your mind." □

SPORTS

Former Upland cagers team up at Santa Clara

By Charles Bentley

There was a time when the combination of Kupferer and Kuchan meant great basketball for the Upland High School girls team.

But while the "Double K" duo returns next year at the University of Santa Clara, it will be in a slightly altered form.

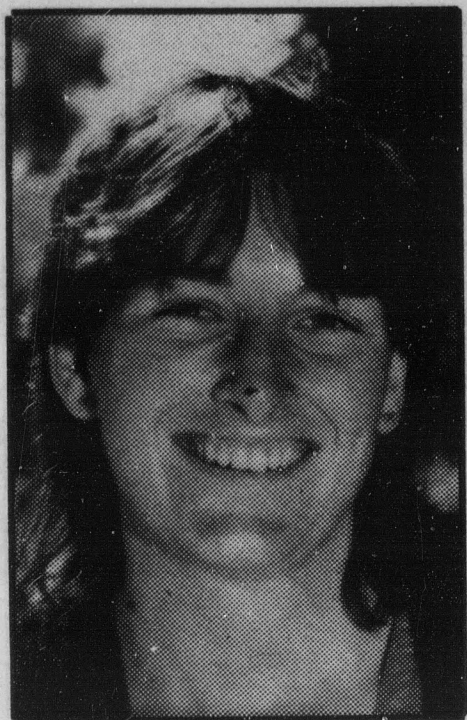

Kim Kupferer, a 1979 Upland grad and a collegiate cage standout at Stanford University, will be serving as an assistant at Santa Clara this season while Karen Kuchan will be trying to break into the Lady Broncos' starting lineup as a freshman.

When Kupferer was at Upland, it was Karen's older sister Patty with whom she teamed, helping the Highlanders become a dominating force in the area.

In 1977, Kupferer was coming off the bench as a sophomore and Patty Kuchan starting as a senior as the Highlanders battled their way into the CIF 3A finals, only to lose to Righetti 52-49.

Upland and Kupferer returned to the finals again in '78, this time without Kuchan, only to lose once more to Righetti, this time by a 55-46 margin.

Now Kupferer is at Santa

Kim Kupferer

Clara, serving as an assistant to coach Ken Thompson, the same coach she turned down when he offered her a scholarship while a senior in high school.

"When I graduated from Upland, Ken (Thompson) recruited me, but I went to Stanford," recalls Kupferer. "The Stanford program at that time was a lot more competitive. Now the situation in reversed. Santa Clara is very competitive while Stanford has fallen down a little bit."

Two years ago, Santa Clara finished 0-14. This past season, the Broncos turned in an 11-17 season, losing six games by four points or fewer.

Santa Clara is a member of the Northern Pacific Athletic Conference (California-Berkeley, Oregon, Oregon State, University of the Pacific, Fresno State, University of San Francisco, Washington, Washington State, Oregon, Oregon State and Santa Clara), but Kupferer says the talk now is that the women's department will soon realign with the men in the West Coast Athletic Conference (Pepperdine, University of San Diego, Loyola-Marymount University, University of Portland, Gonzaga University, St. Mary's College, USF and Santa Clara).

That's a move she thinks may be coming at the proper time.

"Everything seems to be coming to a peak here," explains Kupferer. "The program is starting to roll, and the women's side is starting to put together the kind of base it takes to travel like the men. That was the big problem all along, not enough money to take all those long conference road trips."

Rory's story: Valasek is still frustrated by incident

By Charles Bentley

Frustration.

That's what Rory Valasek felt when a soccer official wouldn't talk to him during the last crucial moments of a CIF playoff game.

Four months later, he still feels frustration, both at the official and the CIF itself.

"I did make a mistake, I admit that," says Valasek. "I allowed the official's incompetence to get to me. He totally let the game get out of control, and then he starts throwing red cards around."

The incident took place February 28 at Redlands High School, where the Braves were battling the host Terriers in the first round of the 3A playoffs. Trailing late in the match, Alta Loma's Stu Valles was given a red card by the game official for not positioning himself as directed during a free-kick situation.

With the red card comes automatic ejection. Valasek immediately argued the ref's decision, insisting that Valles had done just as he had been told.

"I can't understand it. He was just where the official told him to be, and he gets carded," recalls Valasek with a grimace. "So I go over and ask him why. I never used any bad language. And he doesn't say a word, just stands there with his hands behind his back. Not a word."

According to Valasek, he became so frustrated he shoved the official. That not only collected Valasek a red card, it also brought the game to an end, about three minutes early.

Eric Vilchis

Rich Davis, 6-foot-10 former Alta Loma High School and Claremont-Mudd player, gives a big assist to Keith Larson during a lighter moment at Panther Cage Camp, held recently at Chaffey College. CC coach Jeff McCall and staff gave instruction on basketball fundamentals to youngsters at the five-day camp.

That led to a suspension from all athletic competition, imposed by Alta Loma principal Ray Rayburn after conferring with CIF officials on the matter. Valasek, a multi-sport letterman in his fourth and final year at ALHS, found himself banned from any and all sports for the remainder of the season.

Later, a letter from a Rialto-area sports enthusiast (who had been at the game) forced Rayburn to reconsider his position. The letter insisted that, while Valasek had pushed the official, he'd been egged on by the Redlands players and the official had

Kupferer served as a second assistant coach last year for the Broncos, and although the title is slightly different (she's now a graduate assistant), her outside life will be radically different.

While she isn't at practice or scouting or at a game, she'll be working her way through the Santa Clara School of Law.

"I've always been interested in studying law," she insists. "Really, I have two loves: basketball and law. I think basketball still has a lot to offer me, and I hope I still have a lot to offer it. I love the work, I really enjoy the coaching aspect. Right now, I look at it as the best of both worlds."

"I look to spend about three years in law school before I'm out. I've always enjoyed learning, striving to get the best education I could," she adds. "At this stage, I'm still anxious to learn a lot more. Last year I was a second assistant to coach Thompson. This year I'll be a graduate assistant. There's no real difference in the job, just now I'll be going to law school."

For many, law school without any outside interference is a task in itself. The classes are demanding, and the competition so fierce that some just can't handle the pressure. So it might appear Kupferer is taxing herself to the limit.

"Not really," she laughs. "Stanford was good preparation for me. You figure, at Stanford, athletes had to compete in the same classes as the students."

3 Scots to play in all-star game

Three Upland High School gridgers are included on the roster for the East team for the fifth annual National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Game slated later this month.

The three are linebackers Bill Windhorn and Mike Klein and placekicker-defensive back Nick Skvarna.

Damien's Darryl Henley, offensive and defensive back, and Don Lugo's versatile Barry Kidney, who played quarterback, fullback and safety, are also members of the East squad, which will be coached by Ganesha's Dave Huey.

All five of the local stars earned All-Baseline League designations. Windhorn (6-0, 185) recorded 112 tackles from his inside linebacking spot in 1983, a new Upland record, while Klein (6-1, 198) was handling outside linebacking duties.

Skvarna was valuable both offensively and defensively for the Highlanders, scoring 19 points on his kicking and 24 more receiving.

The game, pitting standout prep gridgers east and west of the 605 Freeway, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, July 27, at Arroyo High.

who could spend 12 hours a day studying. As athletes, you had to play, practice, get taped, watch game films along with trying to study. So my past experiences, I feel, have prepared me for the work ahead."

So how does Karen Kuchan fit into Santa Clara's plans?

"Agile for her height, Karen has a real good shooting touch," she reports. "We think she did an outstanding job this year, having to play out of position at center. While 5-foot-10 may be a good center in high school, it's a little small for the collegiate level. But we'll love the rebounding she'll give us from the wing. I know she loves to crash the boards."

"I can't say now whether she will or won't start next year," she admits. "It's really hard to say...the college game is so different from high school. It is hard for a freshman to start, but that's what is great about this game. She could come in, make an impression in camp and earn a spot."

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

(Ontario) Free electronic hearing tests will be given at the Beltone Hearing Aid Center Office at 608 N. Euclid, Ontario on Mondays & Tuesday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have the test. Many people with hearing problems don't need hearing aids. But only a modern hearing test like the one now being offered by Beltone can really tell for sure. Licensed Hearing aid Dispensers will conduct the tests.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test to see if modern methods of hearing amplification can help them hear better. Hearing aids will be available for purchase.

Hearing is a family matter so please bring your husband or wife with you if possible.

The free hearing tests will be given Monday and Tuesday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. To avoid waiting call 984-2248 for an appointment. If you can't get there on Monday or Tuesday, call to arrange for an appointment at another time. In-home testing is also available.

Valasek frustrated

allowed the game to get out of control.

After being re-instated by Rayburn, Valasek's case went up before the CIF executive committee April 27, with CIF deciding whether it should hand down its own suspension.

The decision allowed Valasek to finish out the year without any further probations.

"It doesn't make much sense, does it?" asked the recent graduate. "I read in the Los Angeles Times where a baseball player from Notre Dame High School (Sherman Oaks) took a bat to a guy in a fight. All he got was a one-day suspension, and CIF let the matter drop. I push a guy and I'm fair game."

The other incident took place in a tournament game involving Notre Dame and Walnut. During a post-game brawl, the Walnut coach and players allege that Tony Newkirk hit three different players with a bat, sending one to the hospital.

Newkirk was suspended from play, by the school, for one day, but only at the insistence of the tournament's officials. The CIF later stated it did not take further steps because the schools had taken their own actions and it had not received any other complaints.

More than one person mentioned during the Alta Loma affair that Valasek appeared to have been the wrong guy in the right place, serving as a CIF example to other soccer players and school programs as what it would no longer allow.

Valasek agrees.

"I understand they're thinking of putting the entire Southern Section on probation, warning everyone that things have to improve," says Valasek. "There are a lot of people at fault, but especially the officials. It seems that anyone who can come out is allowed to officiate soccer. We just don't have enough top quality refs around."

"There's a big difference between playing good, aggressive soccer and being dirty. Soccer is a tough game. Anyone who knows soccer knows that," he adds. "I don't think we play dirty out here, no more than anywhere else. But I do think the officials out here allow things to get out of hand, especially this past year."

While he regained his playing eligibility and finished out the season on the varsity baseball team, Valasek did miss about half of the Braves' regular season games. That, along with the soccer incident, may have cost him more than just a few points in his batting average.

"Coaches and scouts have told me that they were looking at me, but when the soccer-thing came out, a lot didn't want to mess with a player with a temper," added Valasek. "Cal State L.A. offered me a scholarship to play soccer for them, but I don't think so."

"I never got anything from them (CIF)," he continued. "No apology...nothing. I don't think CIF was ever really on my side."
